New York, New York (August 21, 2018) – International architecture and design firm Perkins Eastman is excited to announce the appointment of new leadership in its Pittsburgh, PA office. Jeff Young and Lee Pellegrino will co-manage the Pittsburgh office, effective January 1, 2019. The move is a part of Perkins Eastman's continued efforts to expand its presence in the Mid-Atlantic.

"Promoting Jeff and Lee to their new roles is a natural progression for our firm," said J. David Hoglund, President and Executive Director. "Each of them brings a unique perspective to our organization as we continue to grow and evolve both regionally and internationally."

As Young and Pellegrino move into their new positions as Co-Managing Principals, Alan Schlossberg, Principal and Executive Director, is set to take on a broader, firm-wide management role. Having more than 30 years of experience leading a range of planning and design assignments throughout the country, Schlossberg will continue in his role as Perkins Eastman's national higher education practice area leader, as well as provide focus in expanding the practice nationally and internationally. "On behalf of the entire Executive Committee, I want to say how excited we are for this transition," said Schlossberg, "We cannot wait to see what the future holds for both Jeff and Lee, and where their leadership and passion takes the Pittsburgh studio."

A Pittsburgh native, Jeff Young, AIA has more than 21 years of experience leading a variety of commercial, corporate interiors, and mixed-use projects. His passion for engaging clients throughout the design process helps him to develop innovative solutions that support each organization's business objectives. This expertise is showcased in recent projects for Google, Philips, SAP, JLL, Shorenstein and Faros Properties, among others.

Lee Pellegrino AIA, LEED Green Associate, has been with the firm for more than 22 years providing planning and design leadership within Perkins Eastman's healthcare and senior living practices. During his tenure he has overseen the management and delivery of some of the firm's most challenging projects, including assignments for University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences, Goodwin House, The New Jewish Home, and Hebrew SeniorLife.
