New York, NY (August 31, 2021) Min Shu, RAC, MRAIC, has joined Perkins Eastman as a Principal in the global architecture and design firm's studio in Shanghai, China. Shu brings more than 25 years of design experience across multiple practice areas, including healthcare, science and technology, urban design, hospitality, commercial, and education. Thanks to his extensive background in hospital design, Shu will be a great asset to Perkins Eastman's expanding healthcare practice in Shanghai.

After earning a Bachelor of Architecture from Zhejiang University in Hangzhou, China, and a Master of Architecture from McGill University in Montreal, Shu gained architectural expertise with leading design firms in both China and Canada. He coordinated design teams across offices and led projects of several practice types, including office, hotel, office parks, university campus, hospital, and large mixed-use development. Most recently, he acted as Principal and Project Director of the Shanghai office at SmithGroup. His thoughtful and human-centric approach to design lies in building strong relationships with his clients in both public and private sectors. For Shu, the end user is at the heart of every design.

PERKINS — EASTMAN

Having worked on different hospital projects across China, he leverages a well-honed awareness and strong passion for healthcare design, as well as a keen eye for hospital design trends. Select projects include Shenzhen People's Hospital Emergency Center, Beijing Capital Pediatric Research Institute Affiliated Hospital, Nanjing Jianbei Public Health Center, and Nanjing Jiangbei Mental Hospital. Projects in other practice areas include Alibaba Quantum Lab, Taiping Finance Center, and Wanxiang Innova City Master Planning.

"Min brings a client-first approach, a deep knowledge of several practice areas, including healthcare, and an international perspective, all of which makes him an invaluable asset," says Nick Leahy, AIA, LEED AP, Co-CEO and Executive Director of Perkins Eastman. "We are delighted to have him on board."

Shu is equally pleased. "Perkins Eastman is a firm I have long admired, and I am eager to contribute as the firm grows its reach in China and expands its healthcare practice."

In addition to his design work, Shu is a member of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada and the China Society of Architecture. He also serves as a council member of the Healthcare Institute of the Architectural Society of China. An extensive lecturer, Shu often speaks at large-scale healthcare conferences in China.

Perkins Eastman is thrilled to welcome Min Shu to the team.
